History: The land around present day Laguna Pueblo had been occupied for over 3,000 years, though the modern Pueblo was not established until 1699. The occupants are said to have been refugees from the Pueblo Revolt of 1680 and represented five Pueblos and four language groups. The residents of Old Laguna formed six villages which include: Mesita, Paguante, Paraje, Encinal, and Seama. Each village, although part of a larger whole, are autonomous to some degree.
